

PAPER CATEGORIZATION

The TECHNE Journal publishes reviewed papers as well as those that are not subject to reviewing. Papers that are reviewed as scientific or professional must have two positive reviews. Reviewed papers are categorized as follows:

- Scientific papers containing unpublished results of original research in full or preliminary form (original scientific papers, short communication, preliminary communication). This group of papers also covers systematical reviews and meta-analyses.
- Scientific papers containing the original, concise and critical review of a field or its part, in which the author himself actively participated (review article). The paper must contain the emphasized role of the author's original contribution in this field in relation to the previously published papers, as well as a review of these papers.
- Professional papers containing useful contributions from the profession and for the profession, and do not necessarily represent an original research.

Other papers such as reviews, presentations, news, information, recommendations and other are not subject to review.